THE 13 THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW THIS OCTOBER

Berlin loves pretty pictures

Watch this space – literally. A bijou multiplex has opened in Berlin and it's so gorgeous you might struggle to keep your eyes on the screen. The brainchild of design firms Batek Architekten and Ester Bruzkus Architekten, Delphi Lux has seven screening rooms emblazoned with futuristic Tron-style LED strips. Each one is strikingly different from the others, dominated by vivid hues of sensuous mauve, cushy dark green or knock-out ruby red. Even the curtains sparkle, lending the gaff a Hollywood razzmatazz vibe, although the programme aims to straddle the gulf between big-ticket features, challenging documentaries and arty films. Basically, it's ready for its close-up. yorck.de
